What's New: U-17 World Cup

Indonesia is currently hosting the FIFA Under-17 World Cup in four different cities, starting on November 10 to December 2.

Set in Jakarta, Bandung, Surabaya and Surakarta, the 2023 FIFA U-17 World Cup sees 24 countries go head-to-head in six different groups and qualification stages. This is the first time that the U-17 edition of the prestigious sports tournament has been held in the country, as well as in Southeast Asia more broadly.

Four-time winners Brazil will look to secure a place and defend their champions title in this year's final at Manahan Stadium. This is Indonesia's first time in the U-17 World Cup and a consolation following the failure to host the U-20 World Cup in May. The Indonesian national team played a 1-1 draw against Ecuador last Friday and now look to face fellow Group A contenders Panama and Morocco.

Matches are broadcasted live on local channels Indosiar, SCTV, Moji and Mentari TV as well as streaming platform Vidio. Tickets can be purchased through the official ticketing link.
