DID YOU KNOW?

WASTE SEGREGATION

With the campaign season having ended over the weekend, local administrations are now urged to manage the waste from campaign props -such as flags, posters, stickers and billboards- to avoid polluting the environment and filling up landfills.

The Environment and Forestry Ministry's Waste Management Director General Rosa Vivien Ratnawati instructed to sort and shred the recyclable parts to be delivered to waste banks or recycling centers (TPS 3R). Many are also usually reused as tarpaulin for stalls and sitting cover for lesehan.

Talk about recycling, did you know that paper is categorised into at least three different types? What about tissue, where does it go? So how exactly do we sort different types of waste properly?

To find out, join our interactive talkshow on Waste Segregation next Wednesday. Register now to secure your seat. See you then!
