Following the inauguration of the State Palace in the new Nusantara Capital, East Kalimantan province, last Friday, President Joko Widodo has one last major event to attend: the swear in of the new President Prabowo Subianto and Vice President Gibran Rakabuming Raka on October 20.

The 2024 presidential election candidates and all leaders of political parties who participated in the election have been invited to attend the inauguration procession, as well as a number of heads of state.

The event will comprise the opening ceremony, reading of the General Election Commission's decree, inauguration procession, reading of the minutes, the new president's speech, and closing ceremony.

It'll start at 10 am local time at Nusantara Building, Senayan Parliament Complex, Jakarta, and will be broadcasted live at any local TV channels.
